- i) Transhumans was widespread in the countryside of Numida (modern Algeria)
 - The country side / Criticism :
 - The large expanses of Roman empire were in a much less advanced state for example transhumans was widespread, in the countryside of Namidia. As Roman estates expanded in North Africa, the pastures of those communities were drastically reduced and their movements more tightly regulated. Even in Spain the North was economically much less developed. In these areas peasantry who were Celtic - speaking, lived in hilltop villages known as Castillea. When we think of the Roman Economy we should never forget these difference .

Conclusion :

The Roman empire had, however, a substantial economic infrastructure of harbours, mines quarries, brickyards, olive oil factories etc. The wealth and economic prosperity of the empire is extolled by the contemporary writers like Olympiodorus that the aristocracy based in the city of Rome drew annual incomes of up to 4,000 pounds of gold from their estates, not counting the produce, they consumed directly.'
